THE BEAUTIFUL WATCHER. BY W. A. DESBRISAY.

A mother stood by a dying child, The last of her household band; Husband and children all were gone-Gone to the spirit-land. It slept and smiled, but a cold damp brow Told sadly 'twas ceasing to live, For its smile was only an answer to one

That a guardian angel might give.

"Mother," she whispered, "I know that ere long I must sleep in the grave's dark gloom; But papa use to call me an angel, you know, When he sang with me here in this room. I must be in a dream, for I hear his voice, Repeating in gentlest tone-Bright angel come! Bright angel come!"

Dear mother, are you alone? " For I saw near you such a beautiful form, With a face as lovely and white-It is near you now, and sweetly smiles, As it has, through all the night. And mamma, when you slept for awhile, I thought I could hear it sing, But I fell asleep when I shaded my eyes

" But it sang of a home that was far away, In a voice so sweet and low, And how glad it would be to carry me; And I said I would like to go-I would be so safe on its gentle breast, And 'twould comfort your heart by day; For even though dead I will still be yours When the watcher takes me away."

From the light of its beautiful wing.

" My child, no form of beauty's near-The lamp no longer burns, And moonlight only in the room The gloom to darkness turns I see no watcher by my side, I'm standing here alone-Oh, who will try to comfort me When thou, my child, art gone?"

" Dear mother, one kiss ! I'm colder now, And the light to my eyes grows dim-And a voice like Ida's before she died, I hear in a low sweet hymn. The beautiful watcher you cannot see Not yet from my side has flown-'Tis dark ! 'Tis dark ! She spoke no more-The mother and clay were alone.

Female Beauty and Ornaments.

The ladies of Japan gild their teeth, and those of the Indies paint them red The pearl of the teeth must be dyed black to be beautiful in Gazuat. In Greenland the women color their faces with blue and yellow. However fresh the complexion of a Muscovite may be, she would think herself very ugly, if she was not plastered over with paint. The Chinese must have their feet as diminutive as those of the she goats; and to render them thus, their youth is passed in tortures. In ancient Persia, an aquiline nose was often thought worthy of the crown, and if there was any selection between two princes, the people generally went by this criterion of majesty. The modern Persians have a strong aversion to red hair; the Turks on the contrary, are warm admirers of it. The female Hottentot receives from the hand of her lover, not silk or wreaths of flowers, but warm entrails and reeking tripe, to dress herself in enviable ornaments. In China, small, round, red eyes are liked, and the girls are continually plucking their eye brows that they may be thin and long. The Turkish women dip a gold brush in the tincture of a black drug, which they pass over their eyebrows. It is too visible by day, but looks shiny by night. They tinge their nails with a rose color. An African beauty must have small eyes, thick lips, a large flat nose, and a skin beautifully black. The Emperor of Moncomotapa would not change his amiable negress for the most brilliant European beauty. An ornament for the nose, appears to us perfectly unnecessary. The Peruvians, however, think it otherwise; and they hang on it a weighty ring, the thickness of which is proportioned by the rank of their husbands. The custom of boring it, as our ladies do their ears, is very common in several nations. Through the perforations are hung various materials, such as green crystal, gold stones, a single, and sometimes a great number of gold rings. In the South Sea Islands polished fish bones are the fashionable ne plus ultra. This must be rather troublesome to them in blowing their noses; and the fact is, some have informed us, that the Indian and other ladies so adorned, never perform this very useful Turkish Recipe for Coffee.

The mode of preparaing coffee is simple. The bruised or ground beans are thrown into a small brass or copper saucepan; sufficient water, scalding hot, is poured upon them; and after being allowed Persons unaccustomed to this mode of making coffee find it unpalatable. Those who have overcome the first introduction prefer it to that made after the French fashion, whereby the aroma is lost or deteriorated. A well made cup of good Turkish coffee is indeed the most delectable beverage that can be well imagined; being grateful to the senses, and refreshingly stimulant to the nerves. Those who have long resided in the East can alone estimate its merits.

If a fellow attacked my opinions in print, tor, there is no danger of her attracting anything." would I reply! Not I. Do you think I don't understand what my friend, the Professor, long ago called the hydrostatic paradox of controversy ! Don't I know what that means? Well, I'll tell you. You know that if you had a bent tube, one out, Jane; which do you like best?" "Well arm of which was the size of a pipe stem, and the (bloshing and dropping her eyes), I like U the other hig enough to hold the ocean, water would stand in the same height in one as in the other. Controversy equalizes fools and wise men in the Why is love like a canal bout? Because it same way, and the fools know it .- Dr Holmes. is an internal transport.

Extraordinary Sympathy.

Here is something (says Millington's Medical Experience,) that will please the ladies and astonish the men :- The singular sympathies that forewarn a future union between the sexes, have, in some instance, been most surprising. The following, which came within my knowledge, is perhaps one of the most singular :- Mr. ---, a brother officer of mine, was a man of taciturn and retired habits, seldom frequented public places of amusement, and when there, felt anything but gratification. One evening after supper, he was, however, prevailed upon to go to a ball. We had not been long in the room when, to my utter surprise, he expressed great admiration of a young lady who was dancing; and, what still more amazed us, he engaged her to dance. Such an act of apparent levity on his part, struck us as a singularity, which might have been attributed to an unusual indulgence at table, had not the contrary been the case, for he was remarkably abstemious. The dance was scarcely over when he came to me, and told me, with a look of deep despondency, that his lovely partner was a married woman. The tone of sadness in which he addressed me was truly ludicrous. A few minutes after he left the ball-room. The strangeness of his conduct led me to fear that his mind was not altogether in a sound state; but I was confirmed in my apprehensions when he told me, the following morning, that he was convinced he should be married to the object of his admiration, whose husband was a young and healthy clergyman in the neighborhood. Here matters rested, and we both went abroad. We did not meet until three years after, when, to my surprise, I found that his prediction had been verified. The lady's husband had died from a fall from his horse, and the parties were married. But, what rendered this circumstance still more strange is, that a similar presentiment was experienced by the young lady, who, on returning from the ball, mentioned to her sister, with such emotion, that she had danced with a stranger to whom she felt convinced that she was destined to be married. The conviction embittered every moment of her life, as, despite her most strenuous endeavors, she could not dismiss the stranger from her constant thoughts, reluctantly yielding to the hope of seeing him again.

IK MARVEL'S ADDRESS TO FARMERS .- Donald G. Mitchell (Ik Marvel) recently delivered the annual address before the Connecticut State Agricultural Society. From a condensed report in the Hartford papers, we select the following admirable, closing paragraphs:

" But there is something worth living for besides money. That is very good, but it is not all. With the rest, let us raise a crop of good ideas. While you are farmers, remember that you are men, with duties and responsibilities. Live down the old, brutal notion that a farmer must be uncouth, uneducated and unthinking-a mere plodder. You are brought into the great heart of civilization. You cannot get out of the buzz of the toiling world. The trill of the wonder-working wires and the rumble of the locomotive (the thunder tread of nations) come to your once secluded hill-side. Move toward a better life. Do not keep your boys corn-shelling all the long winter evenings. Make your farm a place that your sons and daughters cannot help loving. Cultivate the trees-they are God's messengers. Don't say that you care nothing for looks. You do care, else why did you build that two-story white house, with green blinds, and a cupola into which you never go! Or why did you, years ago, carefully brush your coat, and pluck up your shirt collar, when you were starting on a Sunday evening, to visit that good woman who now shares your home?

"Care much more for books and pictures. Don't keep a solemn parlor into which you go but once a month with the parson or gossips of the sewing society. Hung around your walls pictures which shall tell stories of mercy, hope, courage, faith and charity. Make your living room the largest and most cheerful in the house. Let the place be such, that when your boy has gone to distant lands, or even when, perhaps, he clings to a single plank in the lonely waters of the wide ocean, the thought of the old homestead shall come across the waters of desolation, bringing always light, hope and love. Have no dungeons about your house-no rooms you never open-no blinds that are always shut. Don't teach your daughters French, before they can weed a flower-bed or cling to a side-saddle; and daughters, do not be ashamed of the trowel or the pruning-knife. Bring to your doors the richest flowers from the woods; cultivate the friendship of the birds; scorn the scamp who levels his murderous gun at the bluebird or robin. Study botany, learn to love nature. and seek a higher cultivation than the fashionable world would give you.

"We may yet reasonably hope to rear a race of Connecticut people who shall take the prize at the world's fair. I rejoice in our rugged hills; I envy no fertile West or sunny South. I love the State we live in; her rivers, hills and plains. I love that sound of old ocean on her shore, that brings us tidings from other lands. A dark cloud now hangs over us, but I know of no spot where that cloud throws so light a shadow as on the farmers' homes of Connecticut. No panie of Wall Street can frighten away the rains of summer, or the life-giving warmth of the sun. All nature's promises are redeemed. In the winter at hand the song of the pine tree shall be as God's voice to you, that in his own good time he will bring again the glad spring and the glorious summer.'

NOTICE.

WHEREAS THE UNDERSIGNED HAS BEEN INFORMED on good authority that great irregularity exists in the taking and killing of the wild cattle on the mountains on Hawaii, belonging to His Majesty and to the Government, by parties who claim or pretend to claim right under bills of sale from His Majesty or from the Government, and whereas, from the nature of the country and other causes it is almost impossible to place agents to guard the interests of His Majesty and of the Govern-ment, and whereas all parties having legal claims on the said wild cattle have already had time sufficient, if they have used due diligence to remove the same. Now therefore, the undersigned hereby gives notice to all parties who purchased wild cattle running on the mountains on Ha-waii, previous to the 1st day of January 1857, to remove the same if not already removed, on or before the 1st day of May next, after which time, parties taking wild cattle will b L. KAMEHAMEHA. Interior Office, Jan. 1 A. F. & A. M.
